20-22 March 2018

Telford International Centre, Shropshire, UK

Flood and Coast is a unique event that advances the debate about flood and coastal erosion risk, resilience and response between government bodies and local authorities with business, major infrastructure and asset managers, as well as affected communities.

Convened by the Environment Agency, the event brings together the specialists in the supply chain that deliver technology and solutions to control the increasing risk of flood and rising sea levels around our coasts to spread best practice, discuss new ways of working and to deliver excellence in FCRM.

A three-day programme of workshops, presentations and panel sessions will feature over 150 speakers, addressing the key themes of shared ownership and action, building resilience and future challenges and innovation.

The exhibition gives visitors the opportunity to meet with providers of flood and coastal risk management solutions and services and to also attend a series of free seminars on the exhibition floor.

To ensure the event meets the needs of the full FCRM supply chain, we have again appointed an advisory committee – a group of industry leaders representing the wide range of FCRM stakeholder groups and headed up by Clare Dinnis, Deputy Director Strategy Delivery at the Environment Agency.

Clare explains why Flood & Coast has a unique offering - “Flood & Coast offers a single opportunity for individuals and organisations to come together from across so many differing sectors and areas. It’s where they can share ideas, learn about and discuss developments and innovations in flood and coastal erosion risk management. You simply don’t have the opportunity to do that at other times of the year.”

Flood and Coast 2018 is taking place 20-22 March at the Telford International Centre. Please visit www.floodandcoast.com for more information.
